I am a highly dedicated and organized individual capable of balancing academics and extracurricular activities. I possess strong leadership and interpersonal skills, excelling in both managing responsibilities and interacting with people. As a strong communicator, I am committed to performing tasks while fostering positive relationships with peers to achieve successful project outcomes. As an economics graduate, I have developed strong analytical and research skills, which I am eager to enhance further while contributing to your company, particularly in asset management, fixed income or any related department. I am available to start working in September 2024.
